FHU Shipping Price Rate Sheet 2025

Shipping rates in the United States are typically calculated based on a combination of factors that help carriers determine the most efficient and cost-effective way to deliver your packages.

The most common pricing model is DIM weight (Dimensional Weight), which considers the size and weight of the package. This means both the actual weight and the space it takes up on a truck or plane affect the cost.

Key factors include:

- Package dimensions and weight
- Shipping speed (e.g., ground, 2-day, overnight)
- Origin and destination ZIP codes
- Delivery type (residential vs. commercial)

Note: Fuel (subject to bi-weekly updates, currently 18%), peak, remote area, and other applicable surcharges are additional and not included in the base rates shown above.

Major carriers like UPS, FedEx, and USPS use zone-based pricing. The farther your package travels, the higher the zone – and the higher the rate.

At Fulfillment Hub USA, we simplify this process by integrating with top carriers and offering real-time rate comparisons, helping you find the best shipping option for your budget and timeline.

With us, you're not just getting a rate – you're getting smart logistics that move your business forward.

Calculate Dimensional Weight

Here is how to calculate the dimensional weight of your packages. The couriers either charge you by the actual weight or the dimensional weight, whichever is higher.

Formula:

$$(\text{Length} \times \text{Width} \times \text{Depth}) / 139 = \text{Dimensional Weight (Round up to the nearest whole number)}$$

Example:

12 inch	11 inch	10 inch

DIM Weight: 9.50 lbs
Round up: 10.00 lbs

Listed prices are given as an indication on what we believe to be the final charges provided by the carrier. FHU does not guarantee these costs and the bill from the carrier may have additional unforeseen costs due to fuel, seasonal, handling and destination surcharges that may be imposed.
